INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

No index to any volume has been prepared heretofore, the only guide being the full table of contents on the cover of each number. For this reason and also because the paging of the volumes is often not consecutive, owing to the appearance in various numbers of reprints from different printers with separate paging, the green covers should be bound into volumes with their covers on as the green covers help to locate the separate numbers in the volume. This explanation has been made before, but it is again repeated as a reminder for instructions to binders who are apt to make mistakes on this point.

Owing to the constant requests for an index, the following index has been prepared with the assistance of Arthur M. Brown, Esq., of the Boston bar. While it may have defects from a scientific standpoint which might be remedied if more time were spent upon it, probably it will be found reasonably adequate as a working index. For convenience it has been divided into three parts, a subject index, an author index, and a portrait index.

Prior to the establishment of the Massachusetts Law Quarterly in November, 1915, the proceedings of the Massachusetts Bar Association and literature sent out to members appeared in five bound volumes of reports and in separate pamphlets. Accordingly, in addition to the consolidated index to the Massachusetts Law Quarterly, there has been added for convenient reference, the tables of contents of these five volumes of bar association reports and a list, together with the contents, of the separate pamphlets sent out by the association from its organization in 1910 up to 1916. Some of these reports and pamphlets contain information not found elsewhere which may be found of practical interest in connection with the history of statutes, etc. As an illustration of this, the explanatory notes submitted to the legislature in connection with c. 716 of 1913 entitled, "An Act to Simplify Legal Procedure," which appear in the report of the Committee on Legislation for 1923 may be mentioned.

In the index of the QUARTERLY under the "Judicature Commission of Massachusetts" in connection with its second and final report, the entire table of contents of that report is reprinted in the midst of the index. This is doubtless unscientific indexing, but probably it will be more convenient for working purposes to have the abstract of the contents of that report altogether in one place as well as under separate alphabetical headings.

As to future numbers and volumes, the practice of relying on the contents on the cover of each number without publishing an annual index to each volume probably will be continued. Accordingly, the practice of binding up the covers should also be continued.
